

The student evaluation of teaching work (OMHV, course evaluation)

An important part of the quality management system of the University of Miskolc is the opinion of the students in the evaluation of the work of the lecturers. The aim of the institution is to raise the level and efficiency of education by learning the opinions of students, to identify development directions, to contribute to the planning of teachers' further training programs, and to help meet quality requirements.

The university students have the right and the duty to evaluate the work of the teaching staff, which concerns: the preparation of lectures, exercises, seminars; the preparation of the topics; the provision of scheduled and substitute teaching; the transfer of knowledge to students; the physical availability of teaching materials; the provision of consultation opportunities.

BUT why is it good for the student to fill in the questionnaires?

- Quality assurance, including OMHV, serves the interest of students to receive a better education, useful and up-to-date knowledge.
- You can express your opinion anonymously.
- You can actively participate in the development of education and can help to promote student-friendly education.
- Your opinion has value, as it can influence, for example, the professional content of the subject, and the way it is assessed.
- Feedback will help to deliver a higher quality education, which will support students' successful exit into the labour market.

And why is it good for the teacher if a student gives a realistic assessment?

- You receive relevant and up-to-date information about your work.
- Based on student feedback, you can learn about student needs and expectations and accordingly improve the effectiveness of your teaching and identify areas for improvement.
- Results are part of the individual performance evaluation system, and student feedback is also an important aspect of the university teaching career.

The evaluation of the teaching work provides an opportunity to improve subjects and courses, to set further development goals, to remedy identified shortcomings and to recognise outstanding teaching. The importance of student feedback is also demonstrated by the fact that it is part of the individual performance appraisal system for teachers.

The student evaluation of the teaching work is carried out electronically using the EVASYS and UNIPOLL systems - based on the NEPTUN system - while ensuring anonymity.

The student evaluation of the teaching work takes place every semester. Each semester, each lecturer or researcher must be evaluated on the basis of at least one subject or course. During the training cycle, all subjects of the course must be evaluated according to a sampling plan. The sampling plan is prepared by the faculty's quality assurance manager and submitted to the Quality Assurance Centre.
