Central European Studies
MA PROGRAM

2019/2020

In the second half of the 20th century, the former University of Heavy Industry, the higher education institution of Miskolc with rich traditions, opened its gates to new disciplines and fields. That was how first, in 1983, the Faculty of Law, and then in 1990, the Faculty of Economics was opened, widening the educational and research fields of the university.

In our region, there had been a demand for education in the humanities and social sciences for decades but the number of students Hungarian higher education could cater for earlier did not justify the establishment of a new faculty of arts in addition to the well-established universities of arts and sciences and some teacher training colleges.

In spite of this, there was a growing demand in the region for experts of the humanities and social sciences as these fields (public education, public collections, etc.) struggled with a lack of experts and the ever increasing number of research projects in these fields required the active contribution of young, well-educated and prepared researchers with an academic background.

The two 'predecessors' of the Faculty of Arts of the University of Miskolc set the objective to meet this demand. These are Bölcsész Egyesület ('Association of the Humanities'), working at present, too, but having no accreditation, and the direct legal predecessor of our Faculty: the Institute of Arts of the University of Miskolc.

With the approval of the national authorities, the Institute of Arts started operation in the academic year 1992/93, reinforcing the universal character of the institution.

Thus, education and research in the humanities and social sciences have a short past at our university but our results already speak for themselves: the initial course structure has been expanded: since the introduction of the Bologna system, we have been conducting 3 tertiary level vocational trainings, 9 BA programs, 17 MA programs and several courses of specialised further training. Students who wish to continue their studies at an even higher level may get an academic degree in our doctoral school.

The Faculty of Arts of the University of Miskolc provides the generations of the 21st century with state-of-the-art, easily utilisable knowledge, too. In the ever widening range of courses, you can find everything belonging to the field of humanities and social sciences in the classic sense but also the indispensable assets of our present, accelerated lifestyle: practice-oriented, applicable knowledge.

PROCEDURES AND RULES

The procedures and rules regarding the education, teaching and examinations are registered in the Requirements for Students (volume III. of the Organizational and Operational Regulations of the University of Miskolc).

http://web.uni-miskolc.hu/files/4001/HKR%20258\_2015%20eng.pdf

Electronic administration

At the University of Miskolc, the dominant part of the student administration is completed through the NEPTUN student information system. It allows you to complete the registration for a semester, courses and exams as well as to submit applications and manage financial duties.

The NEPTUN site of the university is available through the central homepage (www.uni-miskolc.hu), or directly at the <https://neptun31.uni-miskolc.hu/hallgato/Login.aspx?timeout=> address.

A detailed user guide can be reached from that homepage.

Grades of exams and practical marks are also recorded in the neptun. Main rules for exams are as follows:

- The student may take the exam only after registration validated in the NEPTUN system.
- Identity of the student shall be proved at the start of the exam by showing a valid document of identification containing a picture (identity card, student card, passport, etc.).
- When giving an assessment of an oral examination, the examiner will put into the examination record sheet the grade and will sign the examination record sheet, and in case the student requests so, the examiner also puts the grade into the printout of completed records supplied by the student together with his/her signature.
- On the basis of the examination records sheet, the examiner shall enter the examination grade in the Neptun system on the day of the examination.
- The examination record sheets shall be kept in the department/institute for five years.
- In the case of written examinations, the examiner shall mark the exam and write the grade on the examination paper as well as the examination record sheet, which is to be printed out from the Neptun system beforehand, and shall sign both.
- On the basis of the examination record sheet, the examiner shall enter the grade in the Neptun system within two days at the latest.
- Examination papers shall be kept in the given department/institute for one year.
- Students may file an objection regarding wrong assessment data appearing in the Neptun system within fourteen days, as a term of preclusion, following the end of the examination period.
- For decision making regarding the objection, the document of primary relevance and orientation will be the examination record sheet signed by the examiner, which is kept by the department /institute administration as opposed to the data in the Neptun system.

- In case the assessment in the examination record sheet and the completion sheet or the registration course book are different from each other, those in the registration course book or the completion sheet shall be considered valid.
- In the case of end-of-term grades (practical marks), the course leader makes a written record of the grades on a print-out of the student list from the Neptun system, which he/she will duly sign to certify, and then on the basis, of this he/she will enter the grade in the Neptun system.
- The paper-based record shall be kept by the departmental/institute administration for five years.
