Course objectives: The aim of the course is to develop students' reading and writing skills with the help of some thought-provoking topics. A further aim is to help them acquire critical thinking, various research methods, strategies and techniques of argumentation, since these are essential elements of writing academic essays in the course of their studies. Skills and competences: skills: The areas discussed and worked on include extensive and intensive reading techniques, getting the gist, expressing ideas in various forms (e.g. diary, summary, analysis, argumentation), and basic techniques of essay writing (e.g. thesis statements and topic sentences, structuring, cohesion). Furthermore, with the help of the texts discussed, students can broaden and deepen their knowledge of English and American culture and learn how to use it in an effective and motivating way for themselves and their future pupils and students. competences: The students' reading and writing skills develops. Using their skills and experience, they can further improve their own competencies and skills, as well as those of their future pupils and students. attitude: The course facilitates the development of students' critical thinking, methods of close reading and interpretation, as well as their intercultural competence and hence conscious language use, cultural awareness and transmitting culture. autonomy and responsibility: The three written assignments allow students to make autonomous decisions about the topic, the approach and the writing process. The thematic blocks invite students to carry out individual research in the topics covered and to understand and learn to make use of further genres and forms of cultural expressions.
Description:
1. Orientation 2-3. Topic block: Generation gap - strategies of anticipation, restating the main idea, scanning for details - mind-maps and outlines 4-6. Course objectives: After completing all eight language development courses offered in the first year, students are expected to sit for a complex exam to assess whether their language abilities have reached the B/2 level. The exam itself consists of four parts: listening comprehension, a written grammar and reading comprehension test, essay writing, and an oral test.
Skills and competences: skills: Students are expected to read, write, speak, and understand English at the B/2 level. competences: The exam assesses whether students have the language knowledge to continue their academic studies of English and English-speaking countries. attitude: Students should be willing to advance beyond the B/2 level. autonomy and responsibility: Students should be independent learners in order to go improve their English abilities and knowledge of the English-speaking cultures and orient themselves in the literature and media of these cultures.
Description: -
Requirements: A complex examination over two days that assesses four areas: listening comprehension, grammar knowledge and reading comprehension, the ability to write a formal 400-500-word essay, and the ability to communicate orally on a random topic and discuss English grammar and grammar terminology.
Evaluation: Listening comprehension: a 5-10-minute-long text (B/2) is read out one time and students are then given 10 minutes to answer a series of questions on the text. 100-86% = 5; 85-72% = 4; 71-63% = 3; 62-50% = 2; 49-0% = 1 Written test: a B/2-level test that consists of 60 points on grammar, 30 points on reading comprehension, and 10 points error correction. 100-90% = 5; 89-80% = 4; 79-70% = 3; 69-60% = 2; 59-0% = 1 Essay Writing: Students are given a choice of three topics (social, political, personal-ethical) to write about and then must produce a 400-500-word argumentative essay. Essays are assessed on their adherence to formal structures (thesis statement, topic sentences & paragraphing, etc.), content (logic and intellectual level), and grammar use. Oral exam: Students first draw a text blind from a series of 15 topics and then receive 15-20 minutes to prepare. Once they begin the test they must first read it aloud (in order to assess pronunciation), summarize it briefly (in order to assess comprehension), and then discuss the contents with two examiners. The evaluation is based on fluency, grammatical accuracy, and the ability to hold a conversation with relative ease. After 10-15 minutes, the topic turns to grammar structures in the text. Students are asked to analyze one sentence word by word and identify the part of speech each word belongs to. They are questioned about grammatical phenomena in the text that they should know, based on the content of the eight courses they have taken. Students must pass all four tests. The final result is determined by averaging the four marks received.

Course objectives: The aim of the course is to familiarise students with the process and principles of discipline-specific research and academic writing. Through a series of 4 connected essay tasks on a chosen topic, students design and produce a research report containing a problem proposing part, a literature review, a research study based, and an analysis/discussion reflecting on the results. This approach allows for practising different writing skills such as choosing/problematising/focusing a topic, brainstorming and organising ideas, data collection from different sources, using/referencing sources, analysing data, and drawing conclusions. As the four written pieces are connected to each other and to an overarching topic at the same time, they all serve as drafts for a larger ongoing assignment, the research paper, which enables the students to experience writing as a cyclic process. Skills and competences: skills: to acquire the terminology of linguistics, to have an insight into the structure of the English sentence and become aware of the ways how to analyse it competences: to be able to use different sentence structures flexibly in speech and writing, to understand and process sophisticated professional texts in the field of English Studies attitude: to be conscious about language standards, to strive to permanently develop professional knowledge autonomy and responsibility: to be able to efficiently cooperate with professional communities in the field, to take responsibility for the English texts created by him/her

Course objectives: This module introduces you to the general development of British fiction, drama and poetry in the second half of the 20th century. The course aims to illustrate variety of thematic, stylistic and linguistic concerns of literature written in the British Isles after the war. Rather than giving a detailed analysis of the period, the course will encourage students to explore the period further and open up their own perspectives to other texts and art works. By the end of the course you will have gained knowledge of several important writers including Philip Larkin, Ted Hughes, Seamus Heaney and John Osborne, and will be familiar with the major theoretical and critical terms of the period. You will get an insight into problems related to language and class consciousness, regional and national identities, and discriminations based on gender or racial origins in contemporary literature written in the British Isles. Skills and competences: skills: Students become familiar with the most important literary and cultural landmarks in British literature. They become aware of the typical research questions, methods of analysis and interpretations of important works in the field of British literature. competences: Students are capable of reading foreign language literature and know the applicable terms at a trusted level and apply them. They understand literary texts from previous eras, thus expanding their range of English. The ability to lead a group discussion is developed, and writing abilities are built up. All of these are aimed at encouraging critical thinking. attitude: In addition to improving their reading knowledge of English, students understand and accept that cultural and literary phenomena are historically and socially defined. autonomy and responsibility: Students should be open to learning the background of an English-language culture as they analyze the historical context of given literary works.

Requirements:
You will find a list of suggested topics below. It is strongly advised that you regularly visit the course homepage, where you will find links to relevant articles, criticism, interviews, images and other sources. The online material reading will be regarded as part of the course material. The biographies of the individual writers will be regarded as common knowledge. You can download a detailed Course Description and Lecture Notes for your own use from the course homepage.
Evaluation:
Assessment will be based on: presentations; handouts; other written submissions; in-class tests; and finally your participation and attendance. More than three missed classes may result in denying your signature at the end of the course. The study questions at the end of each chapter in your Lecture Notes will contain questions and/or quotes that will help you identify and discuss the major issues we are going to deal with in the classroom. You will be expected to fill them in and bring them to the classroom as they will be checked regularly. Grading scale: 5: 100-90%

Course objectives: The aim of the course is to familiarise students with the process and principles of discipline-specific academic writing. This approach allows for practising different writing skills such as choosing/problematising/focusing a topic, brainstorming and organising ideas, data collection from different sources, using/referencing sources, analysing data, and drawing conclusions. Focus areas include extensive and intensive reading techniques, guessing meaning from context, interpreting content and processing ideas in different written forms (e.g. diary, summary, analysis, argumentation), as well as the basic techniques of essay writing (composing thesis and topic sentences, paragraph structure, logical cohesion, signposting). Skills and competences: skills: The students learn to identify relevant questions and hypotheses with a view to becoming able to produce a final dissertation, to be submitted at the end of their studies. Students are supposed to form a thesis statement of their own research project, write an abstract and a research proposal, collect, evaluate, analyse, and actively use relevant secondary sources, use correct referencing techniques and compile a bibliography in one of the accepted formats (MLA, APA, etc.) competences: With the help of extensive and intensive reading techniques and various written assignments students' reading and writing skills develop. Using their skills and experience, they can further improve their own competencies and skills, as well as those of their future pupils and students. attitude: The course facilitates the development of students' critical thinking, methods of close reading and interpretation, as well as their intercultural competence and hence conscious language use, cultural awareness and transmitting culture. autonomy and responsibility: The three written assignments allow students to make autonomous decisions about the topic, the approach and the writing process. The thematic blocks invite students to carry out individual research in the topics covered and to understand and learn to make use of further genres and forms of cultural expressions.
